"great art is something that stretches your imagination and transports you to another world... that's why our new artistic crush is on Ted Kincaid"

Ted Kincaid: I Do Not Want the Constellations Any Nearer/L.A. Skies

"Many people look to the sky for inspiration, including artist Ted Kincaid, who transformed cloud formations and the smog-filled Los Angeles sky into works of art in his exhibition of I Do Not Want the Constellations Any Nearer // L.A. Skies. Kincaid uses the "atmosphere as sculpture and environmental depredation as a filter of light and form" in his digital photographs... This sounds much more romantic than the way we usually view the California sky..."
